

Oozing type left ventricular rupture: report of three cases. [Japanese]

Authors: Hirooka S., Oshikiri N., Kogo Y., Oguma H., Okazaki Y., Irisawa T., Kasuya S., Okabe M.

Publication Date: 1995

Abstract:

Two cases of postinfarction oozing type left ventricular rupture and a case of oozing type left ventricular rupture due to catheter perforation for left ventriculography are reported. The technique used to repair the rupture is fibrin glue-oxycellulose fixation method. The post operative course of three cases were uneventful. But left ventricular aneurysm remained in two cases.