

Bronchial Artery Aneurysm Treated With Aortic Stent Graft and Fibrin Sealant.

Authors: Sanchez E., Alados P., Zurera L., Canis M., Munoz I., Casares J., Eguaras M.G.

Publication Date: 2007

Abstract:

Bronchial artery aneurysm occurs rarely but can cause a life-threatening hemorrhage when it ruptures. The traditional therapy has been aneurysm resection or transcatheter arterial embolization. We report a case of mediastinal bronchial artery aneurysm which could not be occluded with transcatheter arterial embolization and instead was treated with a thoracic aortic stent graft and embolization with fibrin sealant. © 2007 The Society of Thoracic Surgeons.